Yuki-shiro...

Oh... is that so...

They're bits of stardust drifting in outer space that are pulled in by the earth's gravity. Due to friction with the atmosphere, they emit light in the sky at about 100 kilometers.

Old people believe that at the sight of shooting star, you should always make a wish.

But... don't you think that is better than thinking of them as ill omens?

Then possibly something good will happen, don't you think?

ニコッ SMILE

Wow. She's really smart.
